

Configurator for Farfisa's Duo intercom

The Italian intercom producer Farfisa has made a configurator, with which you can easily calculate which products and components you need for an installation. "It is an easy tool for end-users, but especially for the professional installer," says marketing manager Giovanna Fangi. "You will be guided through all questions and options that must be resolved when assembling an installation. That way, you cannot overlook anything, such as which model series you want, which version, but also where you use the intercom and which functions you need. After that, an infantry of parts is compiled, which you can either print or for which you can request a quote with just one click." The configurator works for all products from the Duo-System program and is available on Farfisa's website. ■
